1 Description

1.1 Purpose

This document defines the ALMA Product Tree and explains its use within the project. The traditional purpose of a product tree is to serve as a hierarchical breakdown of the systems, subsystems, assemblies and parts for a project. The ALMA Product tree loosely follows this pattern, however it does not follow a rigid "sub-systems / modules / units" component breakdown, and has been expanded to include items that are not technically configuration items. This flexibility allows the ALMA Product Tree to serve as the structure for a document numbering scheme for the project. The manner which document numbers are assigned is described in the ALMA Documentation Standards (RD01).

1.2 Scope

This document serves to define all branches of the Product Tree, to a level adequate to enable its use as a structure for document numbering.
